

Patient information from BMJ

Last published: Jul 06, 2020

Schizophrenia: questions to ask your doctor

If you have been told you have schizophrenia, you may want to talk to your doctor to find out more. Below are some questions you may want to ask.

- Are you certain I've got schizophrenia?
- Is there anything else that could be causing my symptoms?
- Which treatment would be best for me?
- What are the side effects of treatments for schizophrenia?
- How can you help me deal with any side effects?
- Will I need to continue taking these medications after I've stopped getting symptoms?
- Can I get help to learn how to spot when my symptoms begin to come back?
- What exactly should I do if I spot the signs of a relapse? Who should I contact and which drugs should I take?
- While I'm well, can we agree on what sort of treatment I want if I have a relapse and I'm finding it difficult to make decisions about my treatment?
- Are there any things I should do, or stop doing, that may help me avoid a relapse?
- What should I do if I start thinking about hurting myself?
- How can my friends and family help me cope with my schizophrenia?
- What therapy or support is available for me and for my family?
- Are there any medications that could cause problems in pregnancy?

The patient information from BMJ Best Practice is regularly updated. The most recent version of Best Practice can be found at bestpractice.bmj.com. This information is intended for use by health professionals. It is not a substitute for medical advice. It is strongly recommended that you independently verify any interpretation of this material and, if you have a medical problem, see your doctor.

Please see BMJ's full terms of use at: bmj.com/company/legal-information. BMJ does not make any representations, conditions, warranties or guarantees, whether express or implied, that this material is accurate, complete, up-to-date or fit for any particular purposes.

© BMJ Publishing Group Ltd 2024. All rights reserved.

What did you think about this patient information guide?

Complete the online survey or scan the QR code to help us to ensure our content is of the highest quality and relevant for patients. The survey is anonymous and will take around 5 minutes to complete.

